HA457 was rebuilt for RAF Museum during 1990-91 at Duxford by The Fighter Collection, in exchange for Hawker Sea Fury VX653. RAFM provided Tempest parts to make a composite airframe:
- wings and Bristol Centaurus engine from an unidentified Indian AF Tempest II ex Kanpur, donated to RAFM by Indian Government in November 1971;
- rear fuselage of unidentified Tempest II painted as "KB418" acquired from Royal Navy Engineering College, Manadon

The original rear fuselage of HA457 was not used and later acquired by Ted Sinclair, Norwich for his use in a Tempest V project based on a cockpit section salvaged from a scrapyard.

HAWKER SEA FURY/ FURY

Compiler's note: 29 Furies and Sea Furies abandoned on an Iraqi air base were imported to USA in 1979 by Ed Jurist and David Tallichet and registered in the name of Jurist's company Vintage Aircraft International Inc. They were stored as a large collection of dismantled components in a warehouse in Orlando FL where they were picked through by potential purchasers. The result of "mix-and-match" composite rebuild projects and original questionable Iraqi paperwork is that the identities and ownership trails of many of these aircraft is open to debate. What is presented below is based on the best information available from many sources and contact with owners.

A notable feature of this 2013 update is the appearance of new owners on US Civil Register for the Iraqi aircraft which have languished on the Register showing owner Vintage Aircraft International Inc, despite their actual status.
